PREFACE TO SECOND EDITION

THE rapid sale of the first edition has led to the issue of a second edition. The object of the book is to put on record really useful practical prescriptions of bazaar medicines and this character in the new edition has been maintained. A few new prescriptions have been added.

I know no better treatment for Influenza than the prescription on p. 44 or better digestive powder than on p. 135. If any practitioner can suggest any useful prescription of bazaar medicines which he thinks would add to the utility of the book I will be glad to consider their addition to the present useful list.

G. T. BIRDWOOD

PREFACE TO FIRST EDITION

THIS small book on Bazaar Medicines is written with the hope that it may be useful to medical men working in Indian districts, as those in medical charge of Branch District Dispensaries. Mission Dispensaries and those in private practice far away from chemist shops.

It is of a very simple and practical nature and puts forward a number of definite prescriptions which can be made up from bazaar medicines.

During the war, when many European drugs were difficult to get and were very costly, one recently qualified medical man in charge of a Branch Dispensary told me he could not carry on his practice and dispensary without more European drugs. This showed a want of practical knowledge of bazaar medicines and led me to compile this little book.

The brief list of bazaar medicines, according to their actions given on pages vii— xvii, will show what a large range of practical therapeutics bazaar medicines cover. If a medical man has a good knowledge of these, he can treat many minor maladies and relieve much suffering at a very little cost.

It must be remembered that a great many of the maladies of everyday life, for which doctors are consulted and for which people come as out-patients to dispensaries, are of a minor nature, as coughs, colds, indigestion, ulcers, sore eyes, sore throats, worms. Bazaar medicines intelligently used have a sufficiently practical and wide enough range to meet most of these maladies.

There is no question that bazaar medicines are much cheaper. A bottle of European medicine costs As. 8 to Rs. 2, while a bazaar medicine costs a few pice. District Board Dispensaries can give a vast amount of medical relief at very little cost if bazaar medicines are intelligently and largely used. Even in such epidemics as influenza, plague, cholera and relapsing fever, bazaar drugs can give much relief.

At the big medical schools, attached to our big hospitals, in the course on Materia Medica, Indian plants and drugs receive attention, but in the wards of the big hospitals, which institutions have an ample supply of European drugs, bazaar medicines are practically never prescribed, so that men leave the medical schools with little practical knowledge of prescribing bazaar medicines.

Also the books on Indian medicinal plants and drugs as Nadkarni, Khory and Mooden Sherrif, interesting and useful as they are, give a vast amount of detail and describe many drugs which are practically never used. Nadkarni describes 419 drugs. Many are of great value, many have very slight therapeutic value. The majority are of no practical value to the medical practitioner. Big manufacturing and pharmaceutical chemists are needed in India, who can make and standardize preparations and put them on the market.

It is hoped this little book, by being very brief and putting up definite prescriptions of bazaar drugs, may be of help to practitioners. It is interleaved with blank pages, so that practitioners can add useful prescriptions of their own to those already given.
